THE DOG CEMETERY.

A SEXTON RELATES SOME CURIOUS FACTS CONCERNING IT.

Costly Monuments Erected Over Dead Pups by Their Sentimental Owners—Fanciful Epitaphs and Biblical Texts Setting Forth the Virtues of the Departed.

Toilet clubs are not the only luxury that dogs enjoy in common with mankind; they are pampered also with cemeteries.

On the northwestern outskirts of London, in a fine old country mansion, surrounded by extensive grounds, lives and labors one of the wealthiest and most fashionable of veterinary surgeons, whose numbers among his customers vary from the noblest of the aristocracy to the poorest of the people.

He is a dog specialist, leaving all the remainder of the animal kingdom in the hands of other practitioners, and the fact that he has made a very comfortable fortune justifies him in his exclusiveness. And not only will he tend the canine species when they are ailing, but he is prepared to bury them when they die and to bury them, moreover, with the most gratifying pomp and decorum.

The cemetery reserved for this purpose is in a corner of a field on his estate; but, being inclosed by a wall and planted about with trees, nothing of the interior is visible either from his own windows or from any point of the surrounding country, so that few, if any, of the neighbors are aware that such a place of sepulcher exists in the midst of them.

"Some of the dawgs buried here," said an attendant, showing the favored inquirer round, "died while we had 'em under treatment in hospital, as you may say, but many of 'em died in their own homes and was brought as much as six and seven miles to their funeral."

The headstones and monuments in this singular cemetery are as large and often as costly as any placed above the average human body, and the epitaphs on them are not infrequently quite as eulogistic.

"This one here," observed the attendant, pointing out a particularly neat and well kept grave with a red marble obelisk at the head of it, "is where two pug dawgs were buried. They belonged to an old lady who brought 'em over with her from Paris. She had 'em for several years, and we were always being called in to doctor 'em, though they were always suffering from nothing but overfeeding. At last one day they were both taken ill together—they'd eaten something as wasn't good for 'em—and they died. She was dreadful cut up about it, she could not have been more so if they'd been children—and she had 'em buried here in two as neat little upright coffins as ever you see. She comes every now and then on a visit, and she pays our gardener 25 shillings a year extra specially to water the flowers she planted on the grave and keep it all tidy."

"Now, here we have what you may call a family vault, which belongs to a nobleman, as you see for yourself on the tablet over the doorway. It's deep and lined with bricks, and you go down into it by a flight of steps. There's six dawgs down on the shelves already in lead lined coffins. If you look through the grating in the door, you'll see the names and ages on the stone that covers the opening. The lordship's uncommon fond of his dawgs, and whenever a fresh one dies he's brought up here and the vault's opened for it. We've another vault like this, which will come to presently, only it belongs to a lady."

"Oh, yes, a little I may say every dawg is buried in a box of some sort and a fair proportion of 'em in proper coffins, brass mounted and everything. You'd hardly believe how some of the owners will cry at the funeral. It's mostly ladies that bury their pets here, of course. As a rule, they've got more sentiment about this sort of thing than men have. Nearly all of 'em come regular for the first few weeks with wreaths and bunches of flowers, but the majority of 'em begin to drop that after a month or two. Though there's a dawg buried yonder—see that flat stone with a railing round it?—the old lady has come on the anniversary of his death every year since I've been here, and that's high eight years now, and she seems as sorry about him still as if he'd been a Christian like me and you."

Another remarkable feature of this cemetery is that, besides the names and ages of the dogs interred and in many instances favorable records of their virtues, some of the tombstones are inscribed with poetical quotations and, incredible as it may sound, even with Biblical texts.—London Tit-Bits.

They Never Move.

There are but two European potentates who manage to get along without change of residence. These are the pope of Rome and the sultan of Turkey. The sultan has never left Constantinople since he ascended the throne in such tragic circumstances 19 years ago, and his holiness has remained within the precincts of the Vatican since the triple tiara was placed upon his head.

MCKINLEY'S TWADDLE.

Mark Hanna knew his man when he prohibited Mr. McKinley from making speeches through the country during the campaign, and he is even now regretting that he has spent so much money in getting visitors to Canton, as Mr. McKinley frequently talks twaddle to his audiences. One day this week in talking to a delegation of "farmers" McKinley said:

"If the Government had the power to make money, as some people believe, or had the power to adopt the value of a thing, it would not need to resort to taxes. It would simply set its mints to work and make the necessary money to pay its running expenses."

The Constitution of the United States, Article I, Section 8, empowers Congress "to coin money and regulate the value thereof;" and Section 10 of the same Article prohibits any State from "making anything but gold and silver coin a tender in payment of debts." If the power granted to Congress by the Constitution is denied by the gold men, then Mr. McKinley is right, but as the Constitution is not yet set aside, Mr. McKinley is wrong. His argument that "if the Government had the power to make money, it would set its mints to work and make the necessary money to pay its running expenses" is silly. On what would the mints be set at work? They could not make money of air. It requires material for the mints to work on and as the States are prohibited from making anything but gold and silver coins a tender for debts, the mints must coin gold and silver or the people cannot pay their debts. The Government must get the gold and silver before it can set its mints to work, and as the average cost of every ounce of gold and silver produced in the United States is estimated to be equal, if it does not exceed, its coinage value, the Government, from the establishment of the mint up to 1873, coined gold and silver into money for the people. In that year by legislation it closed the mints against silver and all that the farmers, miners and producing classes of the United States now ask is that Congress shall right the wrong of 1873.

That the Government has the Constitutional right to make money has not been disputed, except by Mr. McKinley, and as he seems to be hypnotized by the trusts and monopolies, whose money he hopes will elect him, it is but charitable to assume that he is not speaking for himself, but echoing the sentiments of the money kings.

SENATE LODGE ADMITS THE GOLD STANDARD IS A FAILURE.

The National Bimetallist, edited by ex-Congressman H. F. Bartine of Nevada, who clung to the Republican party until it absolutely declared against free coinage, prints an extract from the speech delivered by Senator Henry Cabot Lodge of Massachusetts in the United States Senate on February 10, 1896, just eight months ago, in which he said:

"But, Mr. President, Lord Salisbury obeys a stronger force, a mightier will than his own. In the last resort, the power which controls Europe and England is the great power of money and the money lender. The money lenders do not care how many Armenians are butchered; the Armenians are not nominated in the bond; but they care very much that nothing shall be done to disturb or jar anything; that nothing shall be done to disturb values; and they fear that if England moved to rescue the wretched Armenians values might be disturbed and Ottoman bonds decline."

The Bimetallist says "the Republican party admits, as fully as its opponents have declared, that the experiment of the single standard of gold has been a disastrous failure, even though it seeks to veil its admission behind an allegation of other causes, and the present difference between political parties is this: The Republican party proposes to entrust the relief of the American people to this 'stronger force,' this 'mightier will' of money and the money lender which rules Europe and England; which cares not for the butchery of men, but demands that humanity and patriotism be laid aside; which is indifferent to everything as long as nothing shall be done to disturb values, and that bonds may not decline; while the opponents of that party propose rather to risk having gold at a premium than to have that 'stronger force,' that 'mightier will,' that 'power of money and the money lender' rule America and wipe out 'government of the people, by the people, for the people.'"

NEWLANDS IN THE FEAT.

Congressman Newlands responded to the call for volunteer speakers issued by the Chairman of the National Democratic, Silver and Populist committees. He left on a moment's notice, met with the members of the Bryan Clubs and National Committees at St. Louis, addressed an audience of over 10,000 in that city and was immediately assigned to duty in Maryland, where he delivered several speeches. To-day he speaks in Columbus, Ohio, whence he goes to the principal cities in Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Michigan and Minnesota.

Mr. Newlands is speaking for silver from a protective standpoint. He has the authority of a majority of the United States Senate for the statement that there will be practically no change in the tariff laws until there is some legislation favorable to silver. If McKinley is elected there can be no such legislation, as he is pledged against it by the St. Louis platform. The wool growers of Nevada should not lose sight of this fact. With McKinley in the White House there can be no change in financial legislation and the Senate will not materially change the tariff laws.

Wool growers as well as silver men of all parties should remember Mr. Newlands for the good he is doing. The fact that his services are sought by men of all parties who favor monetary reform is proof that his ability to discuss the question with the highest priced of the gold trust hirelings is recognized by his fellow Congressmen and that he is for reasonable protection ought to insure him the vote of every wool grower in Nevada.

A FALSEHOOD REFUTED.

An Italian newspaper at Chicago attacked Mr. Bryan for alleged publications in the Omaha World-Herald reflecting on Italian immigrants. Mr. Bryan wrote to the editor of the Italian paper that the extracts from the World-Herald of August 8th and 12th, 1895, reflecting upon the general character of Italian immigrants were not written by him nor was he in any way responsible for them, and that his connection with the World-Herald did not extend at any time to its general editorial sentiments or opinions.

The Chicago Italian paper refused to publish Mr. Bryan's paper, but the San Francisco papers, Italia and Voces de Popolo, have come out for Bryan and ignore the charge, made that Bryan was opposed to the Italian people.

Bryan's letter will be published in the Italian papers in San Francisco and will be a complete refutation of the falsehood that he is opposed to the immigration of respectable people of any nationality.

FREIGHT TRAINS COLLIDE.
Engineer Killed and Fireman Fatally Injured.

REDWOOD CITY, October 9.—A serious freight train collision occurred at about 2 o'clock this morning on the Coast Division of the Southern Pacific, between Mayfield and Palo Alto. As a result of the collision, the engineer of a freight train from San Jose to this city was killed and another of the crew seriously injured. Last night six empty cars were left on a siding at Palo Alto. Early this morning they started to move. The grade between Palo Alto and Mayfield is very steep and they soon acquired a high rate of speed.

They ran a mile down the track, and when at Greer's crossing collided with the freight coming from San Jose. The engineer of the latter supposed he had an absolutely clear track and was coming at a good rate of speed, and before he could see his danger the runways crashed into his engine, throwing it off the track and smashing it badly. The cars of both trains piled in a heap fifty feet high, smashing over 20 cars, and making the track impassable.

PALO ALTO, October 9.—The killed is Henry Hagerty, the engineer of the freight, and the injured are Fireman J. T. Bowers, perhaps fatally, and C. W. Burgo, brakeman. The freight was running 45 miles an hour when it struck the empties. The engine tender was thrown clear over the locomotive.

Engineer Hagerty was mashed to a jelly and Fireman Bowers suffered broken bones and internal injuries. Trains at noon are switching around the wreck, pending the clearing of the main track, which is completely obstructed.

HOLIDAY IN CHICAGO.

Gettings and Free Coinage Parades
CHICAGO, October 9.—The anniversary of the great fire twenty-five years ago was celebrated to-day as a political holiday, each party having its own big street parade. Business generally was suspended, and the streets were jammed with cheering thousands. One of the unique features of the Republican parade was the immense transmitter stationed at different points on the march and connected with long distance telephone wires, so that McKinley and Hobart, in their respective homes, could hear the cheers and the bands of music. The free silver procession will take place to-night.

Robbers entered the Brainard, Nebraska, bank and blew open the safe with dynamite, but were driven off by the Cashier before they secured any money.

Two freight trains collided yesterday morning on the Coast Division of the Southern Pacific near Palo Alto, resulting in the death of one of the engineers.

O. T. Cole, cashier of the National Bank at Corning, Iowa, has been arrested by a United States Marshal on a charge of embezzling $18,000 of the bank's funds.

Bryan was enthusiastically received everywhere in Iowa, and at Sioux Falls he spoke thirty minutes to a large crowd. He was highly pleased with his reception.

The discovery of a shortage of about $100,000 in the Gloucester, Massachusetts, Savings Bank and the suicide of Treasurer Marshall has created a sensation in the town.

Confederate veterans called on McKinley, who bore a musket as a Federal private. East Tennessee admirers sent a highly polished hickory stump, which was presented by three trainloads of Tennesseans.

The Hamburg steamer Furst Bismarck, which arrived in New York yesterday, sighted the steamship Paris with one of her engines disabled. She required no assistance and expects to make port with one engine.

The returns so far received from the Georgia election show a decrease of over 10,000 in the Populist vote as compared with 1894. The official figures received at Atlanta indicate a Democratic majority of about 45,000 in the State.

Herman Cramer has brought suit in the United States Court at San Francisco against the Singer Sewing Machine Company for $5,000,000, profits alleged to have been made by the company by infringing on the Cramer patents.

The great festival at Denver, Colorado, closed with a grand military parade in which the regulars from Fort Logan participated, as well as all the militia not on duty at Leadville, and State troops from New Mexico. There was a sham battle, Indian dances, games and a balloon ascension. A dozen bands were interspersed among the floats.

Gladness Comes

With a better understanding of the transient nature of the many physical ills, which vanish before proper efforts—gentle efforts—pleasant efforts—rightly directed. There is comfort in the knowledge, that so many forms of sickness are not due to any actual disease, but simply to a constipated condition of the system, which the pleasant family laxative, Syrup of Figs, promptly removes. That is why it is the only remedy with millions of families, and is everywhere esteemed so highly by all who value good health. Its beneficial effects are due to the fact, that it is the one remedy which promotes internal cleanliness without debilitating the organs on which it acts. It is therefore all important, in order to get its beneficial effects, to note when you purchase, that you have the genuine article, which is manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Co. only and sold by all reputable druggists.

If in the enjoyment of good health, and the system is regular, laxatives or other remedies are then not needed. If afflicted with any actual disease, one may be commended to the most skillful physician, but if in need of a laxative, one should have the best, and with the well-informed everywhere, Syrup of Figs stands highest and is most largely used and gives most general satisfaction.

STORY OF THE INCIDENT DEPICTED IN A CELEBRATED PAINTING.

The Magnificent Bravery of a Handful of French Marines—Soldiers Whose Bravery Was Recognized by Their Conquerors.

Who has not seen a print of the famous picture, "The Last Cartridges," by Alphonse de Neuville? The original is in the gallery of one of New York's citizens. Well, in that picture the wounded major leaning against the old chest and watching through the window the effect of the Turco's last shot is Lambert, the hero of Bazailles.

The story of that picture is brief enough, and yet it has never been printed in full in any American paper. It is as follows:

On Sept. 1, 1870, the German artillery was thundering around Sedan. The French army was shattered. Its cavalry had made that last and desperate charge which brought from the lips of old King William the exclamation so often quoted in French papers, "Oh, les braves gens!" At Bazailles, where the French infantry in scattered groups continued to fight furiously and hopelessly, disputing every inch of ground with the enemy, the German losses were severe.
On the northern outskirts of the town a small number of French marines, harassed in a house known as La Maison Bourgeois, kept up a prolonged resistance, actually holding in check almost an army corps. This handful of heroes was composed of Lambert and his men.

The Fifteenth Bavarian regiment invested the house, firing at the windows, without attempting to take the place by force. Major Lambert and Captain Orus and Aubert directed the fire.
They transformed all the openings of the house into loopholes, from which they poured a deadly fire into the ranks of the Bavarians, who were obliged to fall back repeatedly. Re-enforcements after re-enforcements arrived, but repulse followed repulse. The marines kept up a perfect hail of bullets, against which it seemed impossible to advance.

The Bavarians were moved down mercilessly. But the besieged, too, had had time of it. The bullets tore into the walls, the windows with which they had barricaded the windows, and the woodwork was shattered into splinters.
But from the two rooms of the first story of the building the Frenchmen handled their chaps with deadly effect.

Lambert, with pale cheeks and flashing eyes, constantly shouted in a hoarse voice: "Stick to it, boys! Stick to it!" Captain Orus and Aubert, each with a chapsot in his hand, blazed away with the rest. The order of battle was almost stifling, but the Frenchmen were encouraged to keep up their resistance. The last of the ammunition of the Fifteenth was used up. Lambert ordered an attack by the artillery. A shell fell upon the roof, tearing a big hole in it, and also in the ceiling just above the heads of Lambert and his men. But, fortunately for them, it burst above, and, strange enough, did comparatively little damage. A few men were wounded by the flying pieces of timber. But the smoke with which it filled the place was suffocating and almost blinding. "Stick to it, boys!" shouted Lambert. And they stuck to it.
At last the ammunition was becoming exhausted. The cartridge boxes of the dead and wounded were picked up and their supply eagerly grabbed. But it did not last long. Each one was fired, the last by Captain Aubert.

Then Lambert opened the door and with a white handkerchief in his hand limped out in front of the enemy. The Bavarians were furious at their losses. A crowd of them at the sight of the Frenchman made a dash at him with their bayonets, but just then he was rescued by the arrival of the Fifteenth. Lambert and all that remained of his men became prisoners of war. They numbered about 40, all more or less wounded. That evening Major Lambert and Captain Orus and Aubert were brought before the crown prince of Prussia, afterward Emperor Frederick III.
They offered him their swords.

"Keep your swords, gentlemen," said the crown prince. "We don't disarm brave soldiers like you."

On the 13 of September, 1870, General Lambert made a pilgrimage to the crypt where lie the remains of his companions of that memorable day. Then he went to see the Maison Bourgeois.
That establishment is transformed into a national museum—that is to say, it is covered and sheltered by another building, and the original house stands inside, just as it was when Lambert left it.

But there is one unfortunate mistake in De Neuville's picture. There was no Turco in Lambert's band, and the man who fired the last cartridge was Captain Aubert. The captain must have survived when he saw the strange portrait which the famous artist made of him.

General Lambert is now in the reserve force, having passed the legal limit for a general in the regular army.
Some years ago the badlands of Paris used to ask each other the solemnly stupid question, "Have you seen Lambert?"
And at that time nobody had seen him, and nobody had any expectation of ever seeing him.

But now all Paris has seen him. The French army glories in him. The German army honors him, and every one who has visited a picture gallery or stopped in front of a picture store in any city of the civilized world has seen his portrait. Le Journal Officiel reports that he has been promoted to the dignity of grand officer in the Legion of Honor.—New York Sun.

SCHOOL OF ALL ARTS.

MRS. FLORENCE GREY'S MISSION TO THE UNITED STATES.

Director of the Ladies' International Association Visits This Country—Training School to Be Held in New York—Of Interest to Every Woman.

Chicago is receiving a visit from a woman of national importance to women, Mrs. Florence Grey of Paris, one of the directors of the Ladies' International association. A good many Americans know what the aim of the society is, but more do not. The first of the many leagues was started in Paris several years ago, its object being to erect a national academy of fine arts for women.
This has branched out to various countries of the world, until it is now the plan of the association to establish in each country a building for practical arts. The bylaws of the original constitution state that the American branch must be built in New York, else she would strongly advocate its erection in Chicago, where more attention is given to the fine as well as practical arts than anywhere else in the new world.

The idea is to give all women, whether they wish to perfect themselves in modeling, cooking or any other practical art, an opportunity to study under the best teachers. If they come as strangers into the city one of the league will look after their general welfare, see that they are obtained at moderate prices and that their everyday life is comfortable.
The plans for the New York house are completed, and it will be somewhat colonial in architecture. Every conceivable practical art may be studied here—all the ins and outs of wood carving, housewifery, journalism, glass coloring, fencing, needlework, farming, fruit and flower culture, nursing, photography, etc. Charity is not a word to be unknown to the organization, as the object is to make students pay a reasonable price for what they are taught, making them in turn self supporting.

Mrs. Grey will be the guest in Chicago of Mrs. Emerson Strong, who, with others interested in the movement, will put the western section in working order. Mrs. E. A. Small of Highland Park and Miss Catherine Head are both actively interested in the association.
The plans for the American home are arranged by Miss Elsie Merker of Pittsburg, one of the clever young designers of the country.

Mrs. Grey expresses great surprise at the evident lowly plane cooking is placed upon from an intellectual as well as a social standpoint. In Europe this is not so, and every well bred lady is expected to know the subtle art of cooking, the finer the better. Mrs.
Grey is an excellent exponent of all the practical as well as a fancy dishing, and will be her special endeavor to give to the women of this country the art of housewifery to an accomplishment, which is really is. The business course at all her informal discussions is a dish.

One of Mrs. Grey's principal plans while in Chicago will be to arrange for a labor congress for October, 1897, to follow the one in Paris in June of 1897. The International Academy of Fine Arts to be erected in Paris will be much appreciated by American women.

Something of the vegetarian exists in Mrs. Grey, and she devotes a great deal of time to the effect of food upon humanity generally, believing that the best mental and physical conditions are produced in the use of fruits and a total lack of meat. Mrs. Grey is also an excellent modeler, having taken a first prize in Paris a year ago, and she will compete for a purse left for the best design of a church door by a rich bourgeoisie in Normandy. She has written more on French housewifery than any other English writer in Europe. Mrs.
Grever Cleveland is an ardent supporter of this cause, and one of the most exquisitely artistic designs ever seen is the white satin covered book containing the original constitution which is to be presented to her this fall. The celebrated little water color sketches around each page, the frontispiece being a particularly appropriate conception of a woman dispensing favors to the world. The autograph of every leading artist Europe boasts of at the present day is to be found on the binding pages, making a very valuable souvenir and one Mrs.
Cleveland will most delight in. It is not yet quite completed, as a few finishing touches are to be made on the cover.

The Knickerbocker club of New York has extended an invitation for the use of its spacious rooms for a formal banquet to be given the last of September, at the time of the formal opening of the Ladies' International association branch. Senator Coffey, who has cor-

Looks Like a Man of Bone.

Dr. Joseph Lutz, "one of the well known physicians of Richmond, Ind., is the victim of a peculiar disease, which will shortly result in his death.
It began in a stroke of general paralysis some years ago, and has now progressed so far that tedious degeneration has affected the physical textures, making the bones, with the appearance of bone. This is the result of a deposit of calcareous particles in the elements of tissues, and the body feels to the touch as if it were all bone. Dr. Lutz can move his eyes, but otherwise he no longer can give any outward indication of his desires.

Montreal suffered from fire in 1852, 1,200 residences and stores being burned out of existence, the property loss exceeding $5,000,000.

of Washoe, and answer the complaint therein within ten days after the service on you of this summons (exclusive of day of service), if served in said county, or twenty days if served out of said county, but within said you according to the prayer of said com-tinuing up to the date of filing the complaint herein, said desertion being wilful without cause, and against the will and without the consent of plaintiff herein, all of which will more fully appear from the complaint which is on file in the office of the Clerk of said Court at Reno, in said county, and to which you are especially referred.

And you are further notified that if you fail to appear and answer said complaint the plaintiff will apply to the Court for the relief demanded.

In testimony whereof, I have hereunto set hand and affixed the seal of said Court, at Reno, this 31st day of July, A. D. 1894.
